Hey, got a few mins to connect?

Not until later. What's you

What's up*?

About FedDev's proposal. Freeland seems ok with doing something (which you may have already heard). Some questions still remain with FedDev but we should probably touch base in the evening to see how we can move this proposal along.

Aren't we just waiting for paper?

Do you mean a decision package through official channels? FedDev hasn't finalized their proposal yet (what they shared on Friday was a draft). They want a political discussion on designating the red zones.

I've already asked Finance officials to engage FedDev to be helpful and see what they need.
